Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE Arkansas Gazette, replying to a Star editorial, insists it is logical in advocating consolidation of counties to save governmental expense but opposing the proposition to give office-holders a four-year term.

"Fixing" of Juries Paralyzing Courts, Says Comptroller

Griffin Smith Bitterly Critical of Shyster Lawyers

ALL DIGNITY LOST

Degenerate Office Holders Rob Public Service of Distribution

LITTLE ROCK.—The widespread practice of "jury fixing" encouraged by the shyster type of lawyers, has brought about a condition in Arkansas bordering on anarchy, and this condition will not be corrected until patriotic citizens assert their beliefs and express themselves with more uniformity at the polls, State Comptroller Griffin Smith said at the weekly luncheon of the Little Rock Real Estate Board Thursday.

"Detailed records may be compiled; all facts and substantiating exhibits may be prepared; witness familiar with every phase of a criminal transaction may be presented, and grand juries may be in possession of enough evidence to justify a trial jury in imposing maximum sentences, and yet, passions, prejudices and hand-picked friends will nullify all these efforts and discharge the subject of an investigation and even apologized for the inconveniences occasioned, Mr. Smith said.

Mr. Smith reviewed investigations he conducted in Washington county where he said, evidence disclosed that funds had been misappropriated, and in Dallas and Newton counties, where road district funds were misappropriated.

Responds to Question as to whether he believed that public funds were being dishonestly taken, Mr. Smith replied:

"That class of public officials ordinarily engaged in such practices seldom take a vacation. If the opportunity presents itself, the only question is 'Can I get away with the swag and be safe?'"

"It would be illogical to assume that thievery has ceased. And yet, in justice to hundreds of honest, patriotic officials in Arkansas, both county and state, and city, it should be said that the corruption to which reference is made relates to a comparatively few."

"Most of the county judges, sheriffs and collectors, treasurers, clerks, assessors and other holding public positions are keenly interested in their work and would not take a dime dishonestly."

Dignity of Office Lacking

"It is unfortunate that the trail of political degenerates has been crossed so frequently that honest men feel that dignity and distinction as they were once applied to office are now lacking. A great many officials keenly feel the situation. Through elimination of 10 or 15 per cent of the morally irresponsible time-servers who seek election because of profits, Arkansas' political map could be cleaned entirely and suspicion would quickly end."

"But unfortunately, many so-called good men have a weakness for patronizing the sycophants. In the process of jury-fixing, the jury itself is ordinarily insensitive to the overtures that are being made. He is placed

Hope Building Permits Gain 50 Pct.

New Construction This Year Vastly Better Than 1933

Star Survey Reveals Big Increase for First Five Months

LUMBER IS ACTIVE

Retail Yards Report Increases of From 30 to 100 Per Cent

Building permits issued by the City of Hope for the first five months of 1934 showed wide gains over the first five months of 1933, according to figures released Friday by T. R. Billingsley, city recorder.

The 1934 increase was 49.7 per cent better than the five corresponding months of last year, Mr. Billingsley said.

The permits released do not include minor repair work on buildings and residences. Much of this kind of work was done without obtaining permits from the recorder.

New Construction

Practically all building permits issued by the city call for construction of new buildings, Mr. Billingsley said.

According to the survey by The Star, gains in the lumber industry in Hope considerably exceeded the first five months of 1933.

Sawmills and millwork plants in Hempstead county reported larger sales and increased payrolls over the first half of 1933.

Sawmill and lumber employment showed gains.

One retail lumber company in Hope reported a gain of 100 per cent in volume of business this year as compared to the first five months of 1933.

Another company reported an increase of 30 per cent, or $21,000 better off than at this same period last year.

Lumber Is Active

Lumber company managers reported greater activity in their business than at any time during the past four years. Many new buildings are going up, and all kinds of repairs are being made.

Employment among carpenters and building trade workers in Hope climbed steadily this year.

Another sign of returning prosperity to this community is the scarcity of housing facilities in a situation which is becoming acute for the first time since 1928.

New comers are up against a real "problem" of finding adequate housing locations here.

Steel Settlement Offered by Green

A. F. of L. Head Makes Proposal—Senate Confirms Twigwell

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—A plan for settlement of disputes in the steel industry was submitted Friday by William Green of the American Federation of Labor at the steel workers' convention called here to take action on a proposed nation-wide strike.

Tugwell Confirmed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—At the end of a day of bitter debate the senate Thursday night confirmed Rexford G. Tugwell as under secretary of agriculture, 53 to 24.

Tugwell, now assistant secretary of agriculture and a former Columbia professor of economics, frequently had been termed the "No. 1 brain trust" of the Roosevelt administration. Time after time, radical and dangerous ideas had been attributed to him.

Six Democrats voted against the nominee. Three, Chairman Smith, of South Carolina, of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Senator Byrd, Virginia, and Senator Bailey, North Carolina, led the movement to reject the nomination. Glass, of Virginia, was joined against Tugwell.

Most of the Republican independents, however, supported the youthful nominee. Norris of Nebraska and Cutting of New Mexico, defended him in the senate discussion.

Cutting said that those opposing the nominee were "aiming at someone higher up."

"Why don't you come out and say so?" he asked.

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, also saw the issue as one of "progress versus reaction." Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, said those opposing Tugwell belonged to the same group as those who forced "Socialists to drink the kielbasa."

Subversive Ideas Alleged

Democrats who assailed Tugwell, including Bailey, insisted that his ideas

Richardson Ousted From A.&M. Board

Governor Removes Him—Horsfall's Case Up to Board

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Announcing the removal of John Richardson, of Warren, as a trustee of the Monticello Agricultural & Mechanical college, Governor Futrell turned back to the college board of trustees the duty of investigating charges brought against President Frank Horsfall by the students.

The governor informed the board of his action in a letter to C. T. Harris, Monticello, member of the trustee group.

The governor's letter was dictated at an open meeting called here to listen to arguments by attorneys for Horsfall and for the students.

J. B. Duncan of England, was named to succeed Richardson, who was charged by the students with profiting in business transactions with the college while he was a member of the board.

The students, through their attorney, R. W. Wilson, Pine Bluff, stated that they would not be satisfied unless Horsfall was removed.

The governor said Richardson was removed for cause, declining to say upon what specific charges his removal was based.

State Comptroller Smith previously had filed a report with the governor on the results of his investigation into Richardson's dealings with the college, and other matters.

In his letter to Harris the governor declared that the charges brought against Horsfall "were of a serious nature and would warrant an investigation."

The governor advised the board to meet immediately to determine what action it would take in the matter.

Richardson Stated to Go

LITTLE ROCK.—It was reported Thursday that a hearing before Governor Futrell Friday concerning alleged improper transactions between John W. Richardson of Warren and Monticello A. & M. College, of which he is a trustee, will terminate in Richardson's resignation.

Governor Futrell said that he had not been advised of Richardson's intentions and that as far as he knew the hearing of arguments would proceed as scheduled.

It was said by persons who have kept in close touch with the Monticello situation that Richardson's resignation has been prepared and that it probably would be presented to the governor either before or immediately after arguments based on testimony taken at a hearing at the school several weeks ago and on an audit of the school's financial affairs by State Comptroller Griffin Smith.

It was agreed at a preliminary conference last Saturday that it would be determined whether Richardson would continue as a member of the board before the status of Frank Horsfall, president of the school, is taken up by the Board of Trustees.

R. W. Wilson, Pine Bluff lawyer, representing a group of students who filed charges of administrative mismanagement on the part of Richardson and Horsfall with the governor several weeks ago, will present arguments in favor of the removal of Richardson.

The board member will be represented by J. C. Clary, Warren lawyer, and members of the board will be represented by Lamar Williamson, of Monticello.

When asked about the report that he planned to resign, Richardson declined to comment.

Mrs. Anna Dall Establishes Residence at Reno, Nevada

SEPARATED A YEAR

Elliott Divorced Soon After Father Entered White House

RENO, Nevada.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall, daughter of president Roosevelt, is establishing a residence here, and it is assumed divorce proceedings are in prospect.

Mrs. Dall has leased a home at Lake Tahoe.

The daughter of the president has been separated from her husband for more than a year. With her two children, Sitsie and Buzzie, she has lived at the White House during the past year.

The Dalls were married in June 1926.

Mrs. Dall left Washington Thursday with the children.

Shortly after the president entered the White House, Elliott Roosevelt, his son, left for the West Coast, established a residence at Las Vegas, and obtained a divorce from Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt of Philadelphia.

Elliott a few days later married Miss Ruth Goggins, of Fort Worth, at Davenport, Iowa.

Futrell Inclines to Farm Merger

Governor Defends Proposal to Save State $7,000 a Year

LITTLE ROCK.—Declaring that he had not investigated legality of the proposed transfer of women convicts to the state Training School for Girls, Governor Futrell said Thursday that he can see no harm in the proposal, if there are no legal obstacles, because there would be no association or contact between the convicts and the girls in the correctional institution.

A committee, representing the Arkansas conference of Social Work, and the Little Rock Council of Social Agencies will confer with the governor Saturday regarding the proposal which is said to have originated with the State Penal Board.

The committee is composed of Brooks Hays, president of the Conference of Social Work, the Rev. Marshall T. Steel, E. G. Bylander and Miss Gussie Haynie.

Members of the committee said they will present the matter from the social service standpoint and attempt to persuade the governor not to approve transfer of the women prisoners to the girls' institution.

The governor said: "The Penal Board and the Board of Control of the Girls Industrial School have under consideration the removal of women confined in the penitentiary to some building or buildings on the acreage belonging to the Girls Industrial School."

"I am told that this will be a saving to the state of about $7,000 a year. I am advised also that there will be no contact or association whatever between the girls who have been sent there for reform purposes and the women convicts; that their separation will be just as complete as though they were a thousand miles apart."

"I am not advised as to the legality of this move. At this time, in all matters affecting the financial affairs of the state, the taxpayer should be taken into consideration and within an opportunity is offered to save $7,000 a year. I see no good reason why it should not be accepted provided no harm is done. It would be a different question if it were proposed to associate these older women with the younger ones, but that is not the case."

Sutton Homecoming

The tenth annual homecoming at Harmony church, one mile south of Sutton, will be held Sunday. Devotional exercises will be held in the forenoon, with preaching at 11 o'clock by a Dallas, Texas, minister. The afternoon will be given over to singing.

Hope Exempt in Power Rate Cut

Anderson Points Out Municipal Plant Absorbs Local Taxation

Electric rate reductions made by the Arkansas Power & Light Co. all over the state in response to the Fair Findings Tribunal ruling, do not apply to the City of Hope's municipal water & light plant, Roy Anderson, alderman and insurance agent, told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

The situation in Hope's municipal plant system is not comparable with cities served by a private power corporation, Mr. Anderson said, because the Hope light plant's rate contains a large amount of taxation which would have to be raised by specific levies if the electric rate were lowered.

Mr. Anderson reported that in the current city budget Hope has an expected tax revenue exclusive of the plant of approximately $16,000 a year, with annual expense of about $30,000—leaving about $14,000 a year of tax expense to be covered by profits of municipal power plant.

Hope at present avoids occupation taxes and other nuisance levies which are used in cities served by private power companies, Mr. Anderson concluded.

He appeared on a Rotary program arranged by Frank Ward. Other speakers were Bob Morris and Leon Carrington.

Mr. Morris, manager of L. C. Burr & Co., gave another of the autobiographical sketches for which members are called on by the club. Born in east Texas, son of a truck farmer who also ran a grist mill and a blacksmith shop, he moved into the west part of the state with his family in 1913. After several years experience working in a drugstore, he went on his "travels" at the age of 18, working in the Texas oil fields, and New Mexico, winding up with a chain drug store in Kansas City and St. Louis.

He returned to Abilene, Texas, in 1928, joining Montgomery Ward & Co. and helping them open the Abilene store. He also helped them close it four years later in 1932. He was transferred to the Laredo store of Montgomery Ward, but disliking the city, he came to Hope as the local Burr manager.

Mr. Morris paid a high tribute to the hospitality of Hope and of Arkansas people generally.

Leon Carrington, manager of the Hempstead Lumber company, gave a picture of the lumber code operations, describing the clash between large sawmills and small ones.

Kidnaper Frees 3, and Is Captured

Abductor Found to Be Escaped Convict Who Fears Identification

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—(AP)—Held prisoner for 18 hours, three Iowa men were released here early Friday and 15 minutes later their abductor was captured.

He was identified by police as Joe Palmer, 32, who escaped with four others from the Eastland (Texas) prison farm last February.

The three kidnaped men from Davenport, Iowa were:

Al Schulte, secretary of the Davenport baseball club; Elmer Schleuter, policeman; and Dr. W. H. Fitch, veterinarian.

Schulte said he believed Palmer's motive in making the kidnaping was to escape identification.

The three were kidnaped after Schleuter approached Palmer at the baseball park to question him.

Palmer pleaded against being sent back to Texas.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Fletcher is Shrewd Choice as G. O. P. Chairman . . . Proved His Worth in Diplomatic Field . . . Newport Is Out to Halt Gob Gouging . . . PWA Is Hanging on, But Fading Out.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Unlike most Republican national chairman, Henry Frather Fletcher will eventually quit his job with his own personal tail feathers virtually intact.

He is clever, intelligent, suave, and affable—an improvement in all those respects over his recent predecessors. He never makes enemies and has a genius for making friends in the right places.

His political experience has been chiefly in international politics. He was a successful diplomat for nearly 20 years—successful enough to indicate the possibility that he will have some luck in harmonizing the liberal wing of his party with the conservative element of which he is a part.

Often he has proved himself a shrewd politician in his personal affairs as well as in diplomacy.

The Hoover-Conservative wing of the G. O. P. had so many worse possibilities to choose from in Chicago that the party seems eligible for congratulations—assuming it is to follow the political tenets of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, Fletcher's closest friend, who had much to do with his election.

Through all his services, Fletcher kept close and friendly contact with the Pennsylvania political bosses. More than 35 years ago, he was successfully using his influence with powerful Matt Quay, who persuaded Theodore Roosevelt to let Fletcher into the Roosevelt-American war's Rough Riders.

Roosevelt later put him into the diplomatic service and Fletcher became a close friend of Boss Boies Penrose. He was minister to Chile when Democrats won the 1912 election, and was then the American envoy who didn't submit his resignation. He said he was a career diplomat and had earned his post.

Wilson agreed. Instead of losing his job after the G. O. P. landslide of 1920, Fletcher was found chumming around with Harding soon after election.

Harding made him undersecretary of state. Later he became the State Department's ace in Latin America, ambassador to Italy, and friend of Hoover.

The new chairman was always a conspicuously able diplomat, polished and practical rather than idealistic. When he was later chairman of the tariff commission, few protected industries suffered. But he became fed up with that job.

He is active, athletic, wealthy, and popular. He never achieved his ambition to be a senator, but he can be expected to realize his hope of becoming ambassador to London if he ever gets a Republican president elected.

If Reed is re-elected this year, Fletcher will be in position to maneuver his toward Republican nomination in 1936. That probably is strongly in several heads.

Newport Wars on Gob Gouging

The fleet protects the nation, but who is to protect the fleet? Up speaks the Consumer Council of Newport, R. I., one of the many operating under the National Emergency Council and reports here that it won't stand for gobs being gouged by merchants and others when the fleet returns to Newport soon for the first time in three years.

Gouging gobs is an old Newport custom, the council says, and mouths are watering in anticipation. Present plan is to appoint a few officers and enlisted men to the council itself.

PWA Is Folding Up

The peak of the public works program originally supposed to have been reached last fall, with between two and a half and three million men put to work, and more recently predicted as to come in April, then in June, is now confidently anticipated in September or October, possibly later.

Although there's no suspicion that it plays any part in PWA plans, the political effect will be good, even though no one now believes the peak will find more than a million persons on public works jobs.

The program has been so thinned out that its chance for a maximum swift impetus to industry has long since been lost.

PWA actually is beginning to fold up, as far as its administration goes. The half billion dollars he voted by Congress means for new projects. But Congress will go to clear up illotment already made and Congress wants to allocate 65 millions specifically to Postmaster General Farley and Secretary of the Interior Ickes for new post offices.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Are Forefathers a Blessing or Youth's Hardships?

A young man wrote to one of the magazines asking if it paid to be honest.

The magazine turned the letter over to the public, that is, published it and offered prizes to the best answers.

Naturally, most of the advice given the eighteen-year-old youth was in the affirmative, although the reasons given varied.

The prize winner was another young man of twenty-four. His letter was intelligent, but I take one exception to it and my complaint applies to all of the disgruntled young people of today.

He bears down repeatedly on the "dishonesty of our forefathers." And he blames them for getting the world into such a mess.

Hypocrisy Still With Us
We may have to agree with him up to a certain point. It is true that there has been much hypocrisy in the past and that it is still going strong.

But I am a little tired of the complaint of our forefathers. And very tired of their being used as an alibi. It is too bad these young men and women are turned so sour in a land that it took sweat and blood and heartbreaks to create.

"What chance have we?" It is becoming a national whim.

"We must be honest," they declare virtuously, "just to show how much finer we are than our forefathers." "We will put them in their place and run the world as it should be run. No more bunk for us. We will live and think and act as honest men and women should and not pose as hypocritical saints who took for their motto, 'After us the deluge.'"

Conceding that many of the old guard were all that, I would like to suggest that these same youngsters review a few things.

Struggling Forefathers
Since there has been a country, some hundreds of millions of fathers have worked as hard as they knew how from 8 to 12 hours a day, fed their families and clothed and sheltered them and wore old shiny shoes and worn shoes, in order to pay the rent and the butcher.

Some millions of mothers have toiled from dawn to dark and after, with never a new stitch to their backs. They paid their bills and did what they thought was right to the best of their strength and ability. Honest—very one of them.

They paid taxes either directly, or indirectly in rent, so there could be schools to educate soiled posterity to call them hypocrites and fools.

Too bad these people made such a mess of things. Too bad they left such lean pickings for the youth of today. And too bad our "forefathers" in power could not always keep an economically balanced world.

The Coming Test
There has been and still is much crookedness, of course. But we shall see presently just what reforms these soiled youngsters will work when the world is in their hands. Will they measure up one hundred per cent to the standards of their fathers? They have and dissatisfied youth still be talking about its dishonest forefathers? I rather think so. At any rate, it is not the middle-aged and old who have lost all their life's savings who complain. It is youth with strength and the three-score span ahead that cries so bitterly on the world's shoulder.

I hope they can back their words and prove themselves a hundred-fold better than their "forefathers." But they will never do it howling.

Lipstick Should Harmonize With Shade of Lips

Lipstick is the one cosmetic that no girl should do without. She can go unadorned if she's trying to affect that "pale and interesting" look. She may want even powder if she wants to present a scrubbed, schoolgirl complexion while on vacation. But generally speaking, she'll be more attractive after the application of a little lipstick in the right shade for her particular type of skin.

The purpose of any cosmetic is to enhance your own natural beauty. For that reason, select a lipstick that harmonizes perfectly with the shade your lips would be if they were naturally high-colored. When you're buying lipstick, gently draw your teeth across your lips several times, moisten the lips and then choose a lip rouge that blends with the color in them.

If you're a dark, vivacious type, don't get a pale pink lipstick. But, if you're blonde and rather fragile-looking, the paler shades will be most flattering. Avoid orange-tones until you've acquired a suntan.

Simplest Coiffures Are Best for Blondes

The simplest coiffures are most flattering to blondes and the girl who comes under this heading should realize it and plan her hair styling accordingly. Why bother with trying to keep too many waves in place when you look prettier without them?

As a matter of fact, there is a definite trend toward simple hair fashions for all of us this summer. Important coiffure experts are sponsoring neat buns on the neck of rows and rows of little curls across the back with the hair on the top of the head left unwaved and brushed straight back.

And a good thing it is, since summer coiffures are so close at hand and since no one likes to go to a lot of fuss and bother during the hot months. Remember, though, that whether you're blonde, medium or dark, healthy, shiny locks are absolutely necessary.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DONNA GABRIEL, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, MADEIRA SIDDAL, Donna goes to Madeira's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is unaware of the deception but keeps it up even when BILL SIDDAL, Madeira's cousin, asks her to marry him. Bill and Donna are married.

MRS. PLANTER, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy.

ANOS SIDDAL, Madeira's grandfather, has a stroke. Meanwhile Madeira, who has married CON DAVID, the animal trainer, is killed. Con knows of Donna's deception and decides to blackmail her. He comes to the nearby town and Donna agrees to meet him. Mrs. Planter learns of this and sends Bill an anonymous letter. When Donna reaches home after meeting Con, she says she has been at a neighbor's. Bill knows she has not.

Next morning he goes to see Con who shows him the certificate of his marriage to Madeira. Bill thinks his wife has committed bigamy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIV

DONNA awakened with a feeling of impending disaster. For a few minutes she lay on the couch, conscious only of a crushing sensation and a bewilderment that she should not be in her own bed. It was still dark and deathly quiet. The wind had ceased to moan through the trees and the snow to flutter against the windows. In the stillness she missed something—the audible breathing of her husband.

That frightened her and she slid from the couch and went into the bedroom. Bill was gone but the bed had been slept in and Bill's work clothes were missing. She looked at the clock and saw that it was almost six. He must be outside, attending to the cattle.

While she was dressing there was a knock at the door. "It's Miss Perkins. Are you awake, Mr. Sidal?"

Donna opened the door. "My husband has gone out," she said. "What is it?"

"Your grandfather is breathing strangely. I can't rouse him. I think we had better send for the doctor."

"Telephone him," Donna said with a catch in her throat. "I'll dress as quickly as I can. Mr. Sidal must be out in the stables. I'll see if I can find him."

She left the door open and she heard the nurse going down the stairs, heard her voice as she called for Dr. Freeman.

Miss Perkins was back in the sick room when Donna reached the lower floor. "I got Dr. Freeman on the phone," she whispered, "but it will take him an hour to get here. He's nodding toward the motionless figure on the bed." "Is just the same. It looks like a coma to me."

Donna pressed her hand against her mouth and battled with the sobs that rose in her throat. "I wonder if Dr. Freeman has a sleigh? If he hasn't he can never make it out here in the snow! Telephone him again, please, and find out. If he hasn't a sleigh I'll send Bill after him."

She thought she saw his eyelids flutter, and continued murmuring words of love and contrition. Tears were rolling down her cheeks. Again and again she pressed her trembling lips against the shivered ones, unconscious that the nurse had returned.

"Mrs. Sidal," the nurse shook her gently. "Mrs. Sidal!" Donna raised her swimming eyes.

"Please get up. He can't hear you. He's dead."

Donna moved from her embrace, walked unsteadily to the window and pressed her face against it. Grief over losing the kindest, dearest friend she had ever known banished thoughts of self and future. Her sense of loss obliterated everything else.

A LONG time she stood there, seeing nothing, too deeply moved for tears. She knew when Dr. Freeman arrived but she did not answer when he said, "I'm so sorry, Madeira, though there was nothing I could have done if I'd been here. You have the consolation that he suffered no pain and that his death was a quiet, peaceful going to sleep."

Sleep. A long, long sleep. Donna thought of Anos Sidal's beautiful confidence that he would join his loved ones on the awakening. He knew now what she had done, knew the guilt she suffered, but he could do nothing to help her.

Suddenly great wracking sobs tore at her stiff body. She tried to stifle them, but they escaped. When Miss Perkins again put her arm about the girl and led her from the room she made no protest. "Take this, dear," the nurse whispered and put a glass to her lips.

Donna lay down on the living room sofa. The floor rocked with her. She seemed to be floating in the air. Her lips drooped and she slept.

She heard a mumble of voices. At first they seemed far away. Then she opened her eyes. Through a hazy veil she picked out three figures standing in the doorway. A woman and two men. The woman wore a white uniform and the men were in overcoats. One coat was a dark raccoon and there was a rap on the man's head, pushed back from thick hair.

Bill had a raccoon coat and a rap like that. But Bill had gone away. No—Bill was standing there. They were telling him that Grandfather was dead.

"We tried to find you," Miss Perkins said, "but there was nothing that could have been done. You mustn't blame yourself."

Donna raised herself on one elbow. "Bill!" she said.

He turned and looked at her. There was hatred in his eyes—a bitter, seething scorn that seemed to penetrate through her clothing and sear her very vitals. She shrank back, covering her face with her hands. But her hands could not blind her to the expression on his face.

"Leave me alone," he said crisply to the others.

Then he crossed to the sofa. "I know the truth," he said slowly. "I know all about Con David."

"Yes," she said. "He could not look at him."

"You know it's the end between us?"

"Yes, I know it."

"After the funeral I'll be getting out."

Jots Around Shover

We are thankful for the "showers of blessing" that have so nicely replenished the thirst, earth during the past several days; crops are looking flourishing.

Friends and neighbors are trying to show their kindness and helpfulness to the Sherman family who have had a long siege of illness in their home by Mrs. Olga Sherman's serious condition, and who is now very low.

Mrs. Harvey Wright and children spent a few days recently with Mr. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wright of Center Point.

Mrs. Pauline O'Neal of Ardmore, Oklahoma and Mrs. Dottie A. Beard and little son Gladson are spending the week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sanford and their sister, Mrs. Ree O. Gray.

Homer Vines and family of Loneville, Texas were visitors last week of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Vines and sister, Mrs. Milton Rogers. Mrs. Sparks and Mrs. Rexroe of Hope were calling on Mrs. Nellie Leach one day last week.

Mrs. Adelle Sanford and children were Monday visitors at the H. B. Sanfords.

Roy Rogers and family of Shover Springs and Mrs. Mabel Rogers and little son Doyle, of Hope, spent the day Sunday with H. B. Sanford Jr. and family.

Perhaps former friends of the Walker Owens family who were residents of this place once will be interested to learn of the daughter, Viola and the son Calvin, being married.

Mrs. John Crews spent a day last week with Mrs. Henry Atkinson.

Mrs. Ella Hadnot spent Saturday at the Sherman home.

Winston Cobb of the Henry Chapel vicinity made a short business call at the home of his uncle Harold Sanford.

Late word from the Clint Mullins family, former neighbors here, now of Colorado Springs, Colorado, tells of the daughter, Miss Pauline's marriage. We do not have the particulars but we wish for them much joy and happiness.

Mrs. Alja Sherman passed away Monday night at 10 o'clock. Burial was in the Shover Springs cemetery Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The members of the family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Your Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

There seems to be an idea that anyone who suffers from nervous exhaustion or nervous breakdown will be benefited by a sea voyage.

Few voyages do have the advantage of taking people away from their usual surroundings. But certain precautions should be taken.

If depression is a prominent symptom, the intervals between ports should be short. People who are melancholic become more and more depressed by the sight of nothing but water for several days. People who have been ill and get seasick easily should not take a sea voyage for convalescence.

A person who has had a nervous breakdown should never travel alone. After all, the choice of a vacation is a relatively simple matter if you are reasonable, but it does demand a great deal of foresight.

A good vacation is one in which you enjoy thoroughly yourself, in which you are rested when you return, and in which your mind selects a new groove. A good vacation is one without undue exposure to the sun, the rain, the cold, or bad weather generally, particularly if you suffer from colds or coughs, hayfever or asthma.

A good vacation is one in which the persons who surround you are so congenial that you never lose your temper. A good vacation is one in which your health is benefited, as determined by its effects on your digestion, your blood pressure, your circulation and your nervous system.

A good vacation is one taken in a place where there is pure water, pure milk and a good food supply.

A good vacation is one in which the muscles are exercised, but not to the point of exhaustion or danger of the issue beyond repair.

Essary to one of the new simple coiffures. You'll need to shampoo a little oftener during the summer when the hair is filled with dust and you'll have to keep on with the daily brushing between shampoos. If you wash your own hair, be sure to rinse carefully, getting out every trace of soap. Then devise some method of keeping your coiffure neat, whether you're in town or country. One good idea is to go to a hairdresser and have him show you how the first time. After that, you'll be able to do it yourself.

A good vacation is one in which you think of your business, but do not worry about it. A man who thinks so little of his business that he can forget it completely during vacation is not in the right business.

England was so perturbed over the shooting of a London policeman, not seriously, that they tracked down the criminal in two days. In this country we'd hardly give it a second thought.

Going Home

I never see a little house
Chased closely to the earth.
All haled with a mother's smiles
And gay with children's mirth.
But what I think how best is he,
Who, when night's shadows come,
Can turn toward such a happy place
And say: "I'm going home."

I never see a little house
All uncoiled with love
But what I think how best are they
Who, though far they may roam,
Can turn about some golden day,
Cress plains, hills, ocean's foam,
And, basting to that peaceful spot
Can say: "I'm going home."

"Enduring Investment" will be the subject of the pastor's sermon at the Sunday morning service at 10:00 o'clock.

"On Being a Christian," the first of two Sunday evening sermons on that theme, will be given at 8 o'clock.

The evening services are being held on the lawn back of the church. Flood lights have been installed, and arrangements made by the Young Men's Bible Class. It is cool and comfortable. Mrs. Roulton will be at the piano. Mr. Clifford Franks will lead the congregation in singing a number of familiar hymns.

The church school has maintained during the last three months the largest attendance for a number of years, the average up to this Sunday being 383. The school meets at 9:45 o'clock.

were subversive. Byrd held the same attitude. He also said that his chief objection to the nominee was based on the fact that Tugwell and other Farm Administration officials sought amendments to the farm act to validate unlawful acts.

Smith said he didn't believe Tugwell knew enough about dirt farming to do the farmers justice. Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, said an experience he had had with Tugwell at the Department of Agriculture convinced him that his ideas were "dangerous."

Clark precipitated the warmest exchange of the day by charging that the amendment which authorized the office of under secretary of agriculture was "surreptitiously" slipped through by the Appropriations Committee in violation of senate rules.

That brought Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, to his feet. He was

Artificial Respiration Successful in Near-Drowning Case

The junior-senior outing of the Yerger negro high school at Red Lake on Thursday was marred by a near-drowning, with one senior student, John Brooks Clark, being rescued by another, Leroy Henry.

Henry dived in and saved Clark after he had become unconscious. He was brought to by artificial respiration, which was directed by a Mr. Munn, white man of Prescott, assisted by J. A. Harris, vocational teacher at the Yerger school.

Clark was reported fully recovered Friday.

Strike Bill Raises Strong Opposition

Neither Labor Nor. U. S. Chamber of Commerce Likes It

WASHINGTON.—(P)—A chorus of objection to the administration's draft of a bill for providing new methods of settling strikes came Thursday from business men, labor, and Republican senators. The objections surged as the administration sought a means of thwarting a strike threatened in the steel industry.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said that labor could "neither approve nor endorse" the administration proposal to give the president power to name an investigating board which would have power to hold secret elections to select spokesmen for workers to bargain with employers in matters of wages and hours.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, called the joint resolution sent to Capitol Hill from the White House "a most dangerous measure."

Senate Republicans, to whom Democrat leaders appealed for support of the administration measure, handed to a committee of the Republican delegation a score of proposed changes, which tonight had resulted in at least five tentative amendments to the resolution.

Democrat leaders feared that an attempt to push the resolution would cause prolonged debate. This they did not want. It would block an early adjournment.

Hugh S. Johnson retired from the negotiations for peace in the steel industry.

"I don't see anything more I can do," he said.

chairman of the subcommittee which sponsored the amendment.

"The charges by the Senator from Missouri are entirely false," Russell said glaring at Clark. "He boasts of his knowledge of parliamentary procedure, but if he had been in his seat where he belonged or had studied the proceedings of this body, he would have known about the amendment. Now he comes in here three months late complaining about his own inattention to his duties."

The regular Republicans who helped the little group of Democrats lambast Tugwell, criticized the Administration's policies in general.

World's Smallest Car Put on Display in Hope Saturday

Owner Keeps His Car in Hotelroom

Tiny Machine Requires Lowest License Tax in America

It stays in a hotel room at night and its license costs only $1.25 a year. It can run under the legs of a horse or between the legs of a tall man. It's an automobile.

The car, driven by its designer, Roy Albright, will be on display in a Hope Furniture company show window at 5 p. m. Saturday, all day Sunday and Monday night. Albright will drive it on the streets of Hope.

Gulf Agent Brings Car
It is brought here by Martin Bates, Gulf agent here. Albright's "midget" is the smallest transcontinental auto in the world and has been driven more than 100,000 miles and has crossed seven major mountains. It will visit Gulf stations while here.

Weighing less than 500 pounds, with a 37-in. wheelbase, the car, which makes an Austin look like a Cadillac, gets 42 miles on each gallon of gasoline, is capable of making 75 miles an hour, and does better than 40 in first gear.

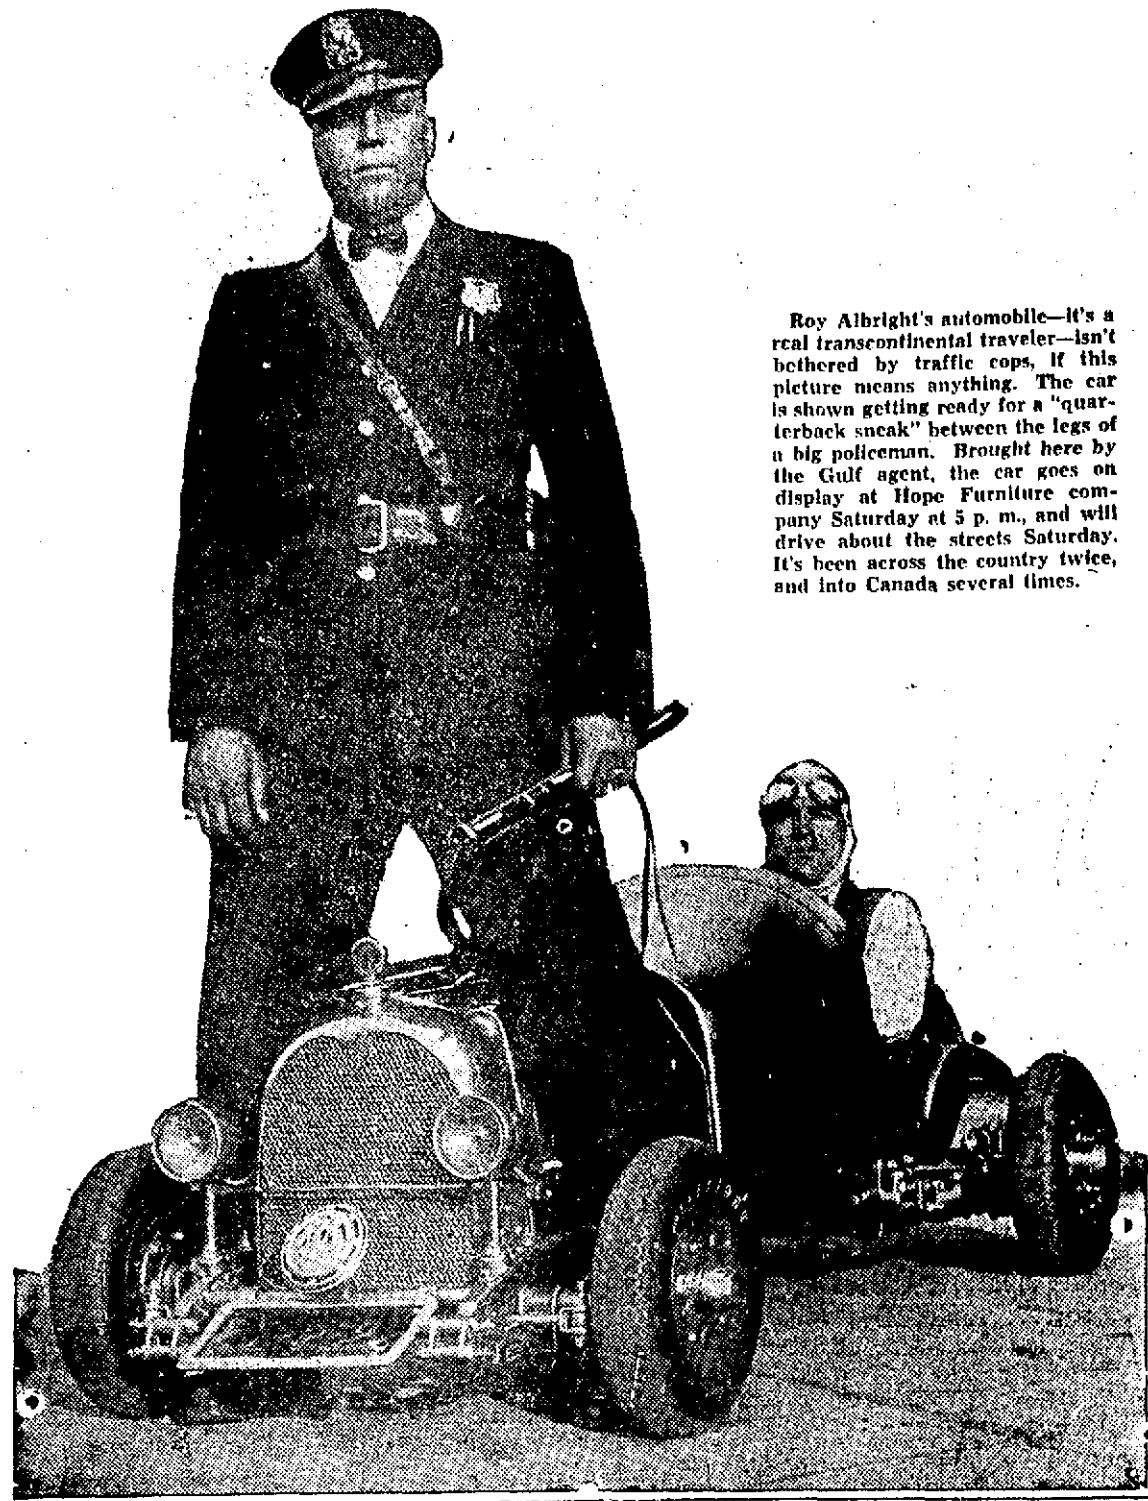

Lowest License Tax
Albright boasts that his automobile has the lowest priced license tax in the state—$1.25.

It climbed Summit mountain, four miles to the top in high gear and also been in the Blue Ridge, Lookout Cumberland and Rocky mountains.

Albright places the car in an elevator and takes it to his hotel room for the night. He has been driving it 11 years during which time it has been painted 422 times. Pittsburgh does the paint work.

Joining Gulf Refining company in the appearance of the car are the following Hope merchants: Automotive Supply company, Hope Furniture company, Hempstead County Lumber Company, and Geo. W. Robison & Co.

Midget Car to Be Seen Here

Roy Albright's automobile—it's a real transcontinental traveler—isn't bothered by traffic cops, if this picture means anything. The car is shown getting ready for a "quarterback sneak" between the legs of a big policeman. Rate Tribunal to Assist All Cities

Will Help Put Into Effect 10 Pct. Cut on Power Charges

Services of the Fact Finding Tribunal of the Arkansas Corporation Commission in preparing ordinances or working out new rate schedules to put into effect the general 10 per cent reduction announced by the Arkansas Power & Light Company last week were proffered to Mayor Knowlton and the mayors of 15 other cities and towns by P. A. Lasley, chairman of the tribunal Thursday.

Chairman Lasley said that one reason for offering to submit recommendations to municipalities is that the power and light company apparently intends to attempt to retain the room basis method of figuring rates.

Schedules in which rate steps are based on the number of rooms in the house are discriminatory where a flat service charge based on the number of rooms is a part of the rate, Mr. Lasley said. He added that the tribunal did not include the room basis in the rates recommended at Stuttgart and that such a basis will not be recommended anywhere.

This discrimination, he said, results from the fact that an occupant of a 10-room house would have to pay the first step rate, six cents per kilowatt hour on the first 60 kilowatt hours while the occupant of a four-room house would have to pay six cents for only the first 24 kilowatt hours. The highest rate would apply to the first 30 kilowatt hours used in the five-room house, to 36 in the six-room house, 42 in the seven-room house and 48 in an eight-room house.

Tennessee Probes Huge Bond Steal

Gov. McAlister "Lost" in Maze of Duplicate Bond Story

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Results of an investigation into the reported forged bonds were laid before Governor McAlister Thursday and the chief executive promised co-operation by his office in locating suspects. Completing two days of discussions with Nashville lawyers who have investigated the matter, District Attorney General David Murray of Jackson outlined the case before the governor and asked state funds in his search for persons under suspicion. Governor McAlister told reporters there was an appropriation which could be used "and I told General Murray I would help him all I could."

A man under suspicion is thought to be in New Mexico, the governor said. It is not known exactly where he is. There may be others later. "General Murray talked for an hour or more telling me about the thing. It's the weirdest story I ever heard. It winds around and around and around and seems to get back where it started. It seems that it can't be pinned on anybody."

Among those with whom Murray conferred was F. M. Estes, attorney for the Life and Accident Insurance Company which has announced that $3,000 of Henderson county bonds were pledged by Luke Lea as collateral on a loan. The company admitted, however, that there was no evidence of the genuineness of these securities as of bonds held by the Warrenton of the World bearing the same serial numbers.

The insurance company intends to present the coupons for payment on July 1.

Hope Wins Over Atlanta in 10th

Locals Beat Out Texans 4-3 in Extra-Inning Thriller

Hope Storks Thursday afternoon took a thrilling 10-inning battle from Atlanta, 4 to 3, in the best played game this season in Atlanta.

The loss left the Rabbits with a slim half-game margin at the top of the Two States league, as Texarkana Firemen lost to the Transporters.

Two home runs in the first inning by Wells and Riley and Coop's squeeze bunt in the 10th inning, sending Madison home with the winning run, were outstanding features of the Stork players.

Circuit drives by Wells and Riley were over the centerfield fence, giving the Storks a two-run lead in the first frame. Atlanta tied the score with a run in the second and another in the third inning on bunched singles.

The Rabbit went ahead in the fifth when Manager Allday hit a home run over the left-field fence. Hope tied it in the eighth on Cook's single, driving in Riley who had walked and stole second.

In the tenth Madison and Cook singled. Riley was purposely walked, filling the bases with no outs. Manager Coop laid down a bunt, bringing Madison home with the winning run. The Storks played airtight ball. F. Allday, Atlanta second baseman, made the only error during the entire game. Madison allowed 10 hits. Glass for Atlanta, gave up seven.

The Storks were playing Texarkana Firemen here Friday afternoon. Sunday afternoon Atlanta comes to Hope.

Baer Wins Heavyweight Title With Technical Kayo in 11th

Maxie Whips Italian to Bring World Title Back to U. S. A.—Then Calls for a Bottle of Beer

RINGSIDE, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York—(AP)—All the savagery and drama of Jack Dempsey's conquest of Luis Angel Firpo—something of a prize ring thought never would be equaled—rocketed out of the past Thursday night to awe 52,000 of the faithful as Max Baer crushed his way to the heavyweight championship over the battered body of huge Primo Carnera.

Eleven times in eleven rounds, the massive Italian, biggest man ever to hold the title, crashed to the floor from Baer's blows, twice in the last round, before Referee Arthur Donovan stepped in and stopped the fight after two minutes, 18 seconds of the 11th amid such chaos and tumult as the ring hasn't seen since Dempsey's most famous triumph in 1923. A twelfth time the Giant slid to the floor full-length from lost balance in a wild lunge at his foe.

Helpless at the end of the tenth round, when Referee Donovan almost stopped the fight in between two knockdowns, Carnera staggered out for his finish in the eleventh, bloody, semi-conscious, but as brave as any man who ever went to so certain a fate.

The thrill-swept crowd, losing one sullen, hoarse roar after another, that swept in waves across the arena, rose for the "kill." Once the sneering Baer half pushed, half battered the champion to the floor. Again Carnera went down from a right high to the head.

He came to his feet, his tree-like legs barely able to hold him up. Donovan rushed in as Baer set himself for the final smash. Through his crushed and swollen lips the champion whispered as he turned his head to the referee.

"Fin!" he mumbled. "Fin. I am finish."

Donovan wrestled in between them, stayed Baer's finishing hand, pushed him back toward his screaming corner, the new heavyweight champion of the world.

Baer Celebrates

NEW YORK.—"For God's sake, will somebody get me a bottle of beer?"

Naked as a jay bird and wet as a fellow who had just been fished out of a river, Maxie Baer stretched out on the rubbing table of his dressing shack at the bowl and gasped for breath after elbowing his way from the ring where he just had whipped Primo Carnera.

For a moment Max just lay there with his eyes closed, and said nothing to the few who had fought their way through 1,500 well-wishers who crowded out side.

Then Maxie shouted for beer and when some one brought an armful of brown bottles he reported:

"There's a blonde outside who says she wants to see you, champion."

"Only one?" inquired Maxie, dipping into a tumbler of foamy fluid. "There should be a dozen of 'em; I must be slipping—I had that many when I was just a challenger."

"Bill Brown is waiting out there is he?" continued Max.

"Say," the Hollywood hurricane ordered, "call up some good night club and reserve me a whole flock of tables. Tell 'em to chill a lot of bubbly stuff, too. A few dolls wouldn't hurt, either—you know my type."

Congratulated by Dempsey

As the new champion quaffed his lager and jested merrily, Jack Dempsey shoved his way in. The two sluggers embraced and Baer precociously inquired:

"How did I do out there, champion?"

"You did great, champion," the old mauler replied and slapped his protégé upon the back. "I couldn't have done any better myself in my palmiest days. You turned back the clock for me, Maxie. You made me think of my fight with Jess Willard. And you were just as hot tonight as I was in Toledo."

"Gee, that's swell, Jack," Baer said, grinning, "nobody ever said a nicer thing than that? I knew I'd lick that guy. I only wish I'd knocked him cold with a single punch in that first round."

"Say, what held that big bum up? I clouted him with enough wallops to chill a dozen men. It was like trying to drop a steer with a baseball bat."

Plans to Roll High

"What now?" he answered a reporter's query. "Boy, I've got the world by the tail on the downhill pull. Anything I want I get, like a rich kid in a toy store—and I'm going to want plenty of things, brother: Hollywood, the stage, radio—say, how that dough is going to roll in. You guys will be calling me millionaire Max and writing about how I light cigars with $1,000 bills."

Avoid Proteins to Keep Cool on Hot Days

In keeping cool during the summer months choice of foods will play an important part.

The energy requirements are naturally less with warm weather, so the caloric consumption of the winter months should be reduced. The heat and humidity as well as the tendency toward physical inactivity make it unnecessary and inadvisable to provide a diet rich in heat producing foods.

However, it is easily important to eat nourishing foods which are easily digested and will regulate the functions of the body and guard against the annoying digestive troubles. Always keep in mind that the stomach is as sensitive to the heat as any part of the human organism and overloading or overtaxing it in any way may cause much unnecessary distress.

Have Balanced Diet

Try to maintain a balanced diet, using the minimum amount of fat and carbohydrate possible to keep the correct proportions. Protein always is needed to take care of the wear and tear of the body, but because protein foods tend to increase energy production in the system, it's advisable to cut down on them, too.

When the heat is excessive, there are certain types of foods it is wise to avoid. Rich sauces and gravies, fried

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Strawberries, cereal, cream, shirred eggs, toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Scalloped new cabbage with tomatoes, brown bread and cheese sandwiches, jelly roll, milk, tea.

Dinner: Veal and ham pie, chared with lemon butter, cucumber salad, raspberry ice, milk, coffee.

Foods, rich cakes and desserts, hot breads and all kinds of sweets have a decided heating effect on the body. All fats are heat producers and some are difficult to digest as well.

The foods to eat are fresh fruits and vegetables, meat or its substitute and often than once a day. And drink plenty of milk and water. Three well-balanced meals with these foods predominating will do much toward making even very hot weather endurable.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are refreshing and cooling because they are low in calories which produce heat and energy. Vitamins and mineral constituents, so essential for maintaining health are supplied in abundance. They are valuable, too, on account of their structure, which acts as ballast or roughage and is as necessary in summer as in winter.

Sip Hot Drinks Slowly

Of course plenty of liquids always are needed. But as heat causes more rapid evaporation from the surface of the body, a larger amount of milk and water and fruit juices are required in warm weather to insure adequate elimination.

Iced beverages are inviting on a hot day but remember that if they are drunk rapidly they may cause discomfort by the sudden chilling of the stomach. Slowly sipping very cold drinks and slowly eating frozen dishes is the safest way and the most effective, too, because it creates a more lasting coolness.

Ices and sherberts are more cooling than ice creams. The higher the fat content in an yogurt, frozen or otherwise, the more calories and consequently the more heat.

New York Given the "Once-Over"

Paul Harrison Reports on Latest News From Manhattan

By PAUL HARRISON

NEW YORK.—Meanderings: Fermission to stand up at bars hasn't done much toward putting the town on its feet. . . . Manhattan's sharing the drought, too, and it looks as though the AAA won't force crop limitation on penthouse owners. Even at that, there may not be enough mint for the juleps this summer. . . . Lita Grey Chaplin seems to be finding romance with a physician. . . . and Thalia Massie has recovered her composure to the extent of getting around a bit to the night spots. . . . Broadwaymen are going to wear black linen trousers this summer, instead of white ones. . . . Big William Tilden wears no hat. And riato lasses are going without stockings again. There ought to be a code.

Among the Literati

After years of trying, Fannie Hurst has learned to drive a car. . . . Alice Duer Miller likes baseball, but won't go with anyone to whom she has to explain the game. . . . Joseph Hergesheimer back from England, helped make a movie over there. . . . Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn matador, joins the literati with a translation of a Spanish book on bullfighting. . . . Massaguer, the revolutionary caricaturist, finally is able to go back to Cuba, where he'll edit a magazine.

Elaborate weddings, standing the brides' papas as much as $50,000, are Elmore July 9.

McCaskill

The McCaskill Home Demonstration clubmet last Thursday June 7th at the home of Mrs. Bert Scott.

The meeting was called to order by Miss Griffin. The devotional was led by Mrs. Hayne Hutchinson. The secretary being absent the minutes and roll call were omitted. There were 11 members present.

Miss Griffin gave instructions and also demonstrated how to make a fly trap. Then, in the kitchen, she demonstrated how to make jelly.

Delicious lemonade was served by the hostess after which the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. John Gaines in July.

Edison's Son Aids Housing Program

Eldest son of the late Thomas Edison, inventor, Charles Edison, an executive of the National Emergency Council at Washington, is helping to further the government's housing program. He is shown at the Senate Banking and Currency Committee hearing during discussion of the Housing bill.

becoming fashionable again. For the marriage of Helena McCann, granddaughter of the late F. W. Woolworth, and Winston Guest, the poloist, several freight-car loads of coconut palms were brought from Florida and transplanted to the McCann's Long Island estate. . . . Doris Duke, world's richest girl, has been getting about regularly with James A. Burden Jr. . . . While Rita Mitchell, who was one of society's outstanding hostesses before the storm broke over her banker father, is selling advertising for a newspaper.

Hobby Horses

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, whose horses have won the Kentucky and American Derbies, and the Preakness, was afraid she had taken on an exorbitantly costly hobby when she bought a couple of racing nags eight years ago. She likes dogs, too; collects china ones and raises Schnauzers. . . . Mrs. Clendenin Ryan is another socialite going Hollywood, or hoping to. . . . Prince George of Russia has gone to Southampton for the summer—to run a branch of a department store.

Danny Aherm, author and movie scenarioist who used to be known by police on most of the Broadways of America, was unlucky on his thirteenth arrest. The fellow who wrote "Hew to Commit a Murder and Get Away With It" has been sent to prison for a measly $200 flyer in larceny. . . . Never again will I speculate on the unsuitability of certain books or plays for movie adaptation. It seems that some Hollywood people are planning to produce James Joyce's "Ulysses," the tome which for ten years was banned from the United States on grounds of obscenity. Joyce's son, George, is in New York seeing about it. . . . Incidentally, the author is doing another book which may be reviewed by the courts.

Case of Prince Michael

The notorious "Prince Mike Romanoff" (whom I've refrained from mentioning for months) is going to have a part in a Graceland musical show. . . . Incidentally, I've just heard the tale of how the bogus noble acquired a costly gold cigarette case from one of the younger Mellons, of THE Pittsburgh Mellons. At a night club party, Mike asked to see the trinket and Mellon passed it over. Mike examined it admiringly, then slipped it into his pocket. And after a couple of embarrassed minutes it was suggested that he give it back.

Mike simulated surprise. "Why, my dear fellow, this case seems to be mine. See, the initials are 'P. M.'" for "Prince Michael."

"You win," said the owner graciously. "I've been carrying it all these years (thinking they stood for 'Paul Mellon')."

Holly Springs

We have had quite a lot of rain lately so the farmers are busy trying to destroy the grass in their cotton fields.

Mrs. J. S. McDowell returned home Friday after spending a week with her father, B. S. Alford and brother, C. W. and W. C. of Minden, La., and also a brother, T. P. Alford, of Cotton Valley, La.

We are glad to report that Ray Phillips is improving from a severe case of measles.

Lawrence and Lois McDowell entertained their little friends Saturday evening with a birthday party. William Martin spent Saturday night with Arthur McDowell.

Miss Helen Butler spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Len Turner.

E. E. Phillips and son, Paris, made a business trip to Hope Tuesday. Miss Marie McDowell spent Saturday with Miss Nellie Huckabee.

Relieves Headache

Due To Constipation

"Theodore's Black-Draught has been used in my family for years," writes Mrs. J. A. Hightower, of Carthage, Texas. "I take it for sick headache that comes from constipation. When I feel a headache coming on, I take a dose of Black-Draught. It acts and my head gets easy. Before I knew of Black-Draught, I would suffer two or three days—but not any more since I have used Black-Draught."
